Registered Bulls Assigned Clubs

Car Load Due To Arrive Saturday Already Placed

Is First Shipment of Kind Ever Made To This County.

BE SHOWN SATURDAY

Animals Will Be Shown After Arrival Here Saturday Noon.

Final preparations have been made for the distribution in Hope Saturday of the first car load of pure bred dairy bulls ever brought into Hempstead county. Speakers invited for the occasion are Governor Harvey Parnell, who has not a yet signified whether he will be able to be here or not, John V. Nevitt dairyman for the Missouri Pacific, W. H. Woodley, dairy specialist for the University of Arkansas and O. L. McMurray, district agent for southwest Arkansas.

The bulls will be on display in the streets of Hope beginning sometime Saturday morning and will be delivered to representatives of the various Bull clubs by Dr. Nevitt, representing the Missouri Pacific, following the speaking program which will begin about 2 p. m. The ten bulls have all been placed, and following are the communities which will get an animal and the man who has been selected to receive them:

Community	Man to receive Animal
Palmos	A. N. Rider
Spring Hill	Allen Johnson
Liberty	Elmer Calhoun
De Ann	Leroy Samuels
Hinton	A. J. Camp
McCaskill	Bert Scott
Columbus	Odis Johnson

The following have each bought individually:

Zan Bateman
Carl Richards
Floyd Moses

With the exception of one animal, these bulls are strictly of Island breeding and come from some of the most noted lines of breeding.

It is expected that this shipment of animals will begin a very important drive in Hempstead county, and surrounding territory, for the improvement of the quality of dairy animals. Mr. L. E. Armstrong, of Rosston was in Hope yesterday making inquiry relative to the purchase of a few pure bred Jersey heifers as foundation breeding stock for his dairy herd, according to County Agent Lynn Smith.

With the coming of better dairy sires will come the demand for better cows and heifers. While it is foolish for any dairy man to expect to buy all pure bred animals to begin with, if he is where he can get the service of a good bred sire; then get, in addition to his grade cows, one or two pure bred heifers for foundation stock this will improve his herd quicker and safer than by any other means. The rule applies in the dairy business as it does in any business that the lower one keeps their investment the greater opportunity there is for profit. The rule, however, should not be interpeted to mean that the cheapest cows are those which cost the least money.

Popular Officer Has Badly Sprained Wrist

Bryce Arnett, popular day patrolman, knows today just how it feels to be a one-armed man. In triggering around yesterday he twisted his right wrist painfully and this morning uses his left mitt in shaking hands or lifting his coffee cup. And if you desire to see things happen, just walk up and try to grab his right hand. Then ask him how it all happened. You'll both see and hear!

Bobcats To Meet Texarkana High

To Invade State Line City for Struggle Friday Afternoon.

Hope Hi Bobcats journey to Texarkana Friday afternoon to stage their annual tangle with the high school warriors on the Arkansas side of the State Line city. They will be accompanied by the pep squad and a number of students, not to mention a crowd of fans from the city proper who are going down to see the youngsters get in there and battle.

Coach Coleman has been giving his youngsters some pretty stiff goings over since their last squabble with a gridiron enemy. The youngsters have more life and fight now than exhibited for some time and if that Texarkana bunch should win it will be after they've staged a real football scrap.

Heads Y.M.C.A.

Francis S. Harmon, editor of the Hattiesburg (Miss.) American, was elected national president of the Y. M. C. A. at its annual convention in Chicago. Mr. Harmon is president of the Mississippi Y. M. C. A. and is a former assistant attorney-general of that state.

Senator Granville Jones Gravely Ill

Little Hope for Recovery of Caddo Gap Member of Legislature.

Senator Granville Jones of Caddo Gap is seriously ill at his home and there is little hope of his recovery, it was said today by his brother.

Senator Jones, widely known as a lecturer and public speaker, was elected senator from the Thirty-first district last year for a four-year term. Garland and Montgomery counties compose the district. He spoke extensively in Arkansas and other states in the interest of Alfred E. Smith's campaign for the presidency in the fall of 1928.

During the 1929 session of the legislature he sponsored unsuccessfully a workmen's compensation measure, supported in general administration tax measures, but opposed creation of additional state educational institutions and introduced a bill proposing that the four district agricultural colleges be merged into one agricultural and mechanical college.

Wind Storm Hits Little Rock Area

Buildings Wrecked As Storm Strikes In Dairy Section

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A wind storm approaching a tornado in violence damaged several dwellings and destroyed a number of farm and dairy buildings in the vicinity of Maplevale near here late last night. No reports have been received of any person being killed or injured.

Martin's Dairy, at Maplevale, was the worst sufferer, the main building being unroofed and three others damaged or demolished and a water tower blown down. The damage to the farm was placed at about $2,500. A grocery was damaged as well, and several residences suffered slight damage.

The wind was accompanied by a rain in Little Rock which in two hours time flooded the streets with two and one-half inches of water.

Reunion Next Year Set for June 6-7

Confederate Vets Will Make Pilgrimage To Biloxi, Mississippi.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 31. The date of the fortieth annual Confederate reunion, which will be held in Biloxi, Miss., has been set for June 3 to 7, inclusive, according to Edmond R. Wiles, business manager returned by the Confederate reunion committee of Mississippi. The state of Mississippi has appropriated $40,000 toward the expense of the reunion, which an additional $25,000 is expected to be raised.

Mr. Wiles is in the city where he was called on account of the illness of a daughter. He was general chairman of the reunion held in Little Rock in 1928 and business manager of the reunion held last summer at Charlotte, N. C.

Arrangements for the reception of 5,000 veterans and 50,000 daily visitors at the reunion grounds are being made tentatively. The site selected is near "Beauvoir," the home of Jefferson Davis after the Civil war, and located between Biloxi and Gulfport.

Chicago 'Scourge' Meets Fate He Gave To Many

"King of Little Sicily" Dies When Steps Out To Meet Stranger

CHIEF EXTORTIONIST

Had Sought Injunction To Prevent Police Arresting Him

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—(AP) Rocco Maggio, called "The Scourge," died today from bullet wounds, one in his head and three in his back. Police merely shrugged and said "he had gotten what was coming to him."

"King of Sicilian Extortionists" was one of the names of the man whose death came as the climax to a celebration in observance of his 33rd birthday anniversary. He was one of the most feared man in "Little Sicily."

Killed In Grocery Store

The shooting down of Maggio among the vegetable bins in his father-in-law' grocery store last night followed by a few hours the bold assassination in other part of town of Myles Cannazen, known to police as a racketeer. Cannazen was shot dead in the presence of his wife as he was starting their automobile.

A stranger entered the little west side grocery store and inquired of a clerk if "my friends Maggio is here?" Maggio was called from a rear room and as he stepped forward the stranger poked a pistol into his face, shouting curses at him, and fired.

Many Times Arrested

Maggio had been arrested many times, so frequently, in fact, that a few weeks ago he sought an injunction to restrain police from annoying him. The writ was refused.

County Judges In Fight On Tax Plan

Object To Paying Tax On Gasoline and County Automobiles

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Forty-six county judges of the Arkansas County Judges' Association meeting here today expressed opposition to the state tax on motor vehicles and gasoline used for county purposes.

A committee of five judges was appointed to confer with Attorney General Norwood and the State Highway Commission regarding the laws and report back to the Association at a later hour.

The members present were unanimous in their opposition to the acts and all proposed to resist payment of the taxes.

Lake Chicot To Be Freed From Gar

Protection Sought for Game Fish In Streams of State.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 31.—The task of ridding Lake Chicot, one of the most popular fishing spots of Arkansas of gar and other predatory species of fish will begin next Monday, it was said by Guy Amsler, secretary of the Arkansas game and fish commission, under whose directions the work is to be performed.

The job is expected to last several months and Secretary Amsler said that it has been estimated that fully a million gar will be removed from the lake and the danger to the game fish supply reduced that much.

A seine 500 yards long and of one inch mesh has been purchased by the game and fish commission for the work. All game fish taken from the lake during the seining are to be placed back in the water and a game warden is to be constantly on duty to see that the orders are carried out, Secretary Amsler said.

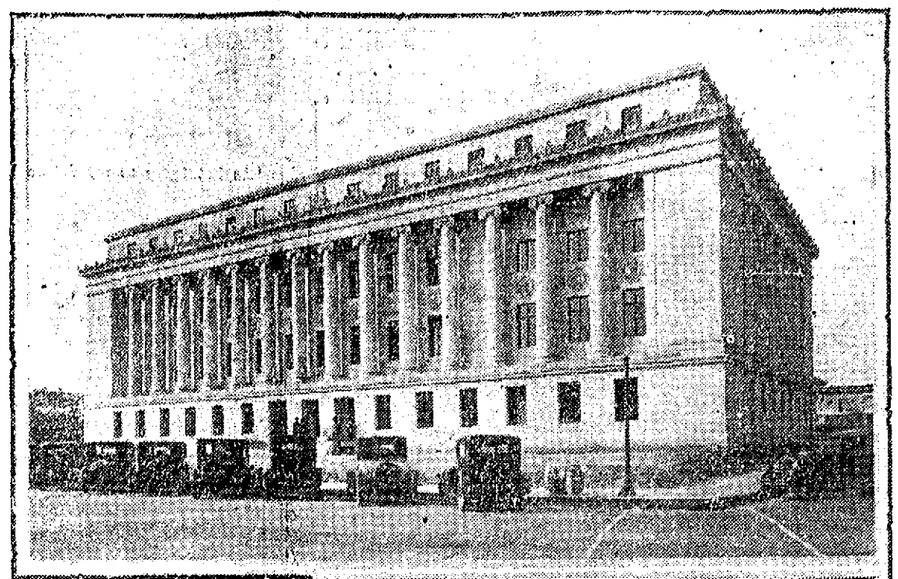

The undertaking is in the nature of an experiment by the game and fish commission. If it proves to be successful in ridding Lake Chicot of gar, it is probable that other gar-infected waters will be treated to a like process.

Another matter of interest to persons desiring to preserve Lake Chicot is due to come up Monday.

That is the suit pending in court at Lake Village in which Hal Norwood, attorney general, brought an action in the name of the state of Arkansas to compel the Chicot county drainage district to dam an outlet cut by the drainage district in the lake bank and which lowered the level several feet.

A new angle recently was taken in the suit. The drainage district said it could not dam the outlet because its funds are exhausted. Attorney General Norwood struck back by alleging that the drainage district is insolvent and asked that a receiver for it be appointed.

Union County's New Courthouse

Exterior and interior views of Union county's $700,000 courthouse, on the court square at El Dorado, which will be formally dedicated at the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of that county, this Saturday.

To Be Dedicated Saturday, Nov. 2

100th Anniversary Will Draw Throngs To El Dorado.

EL DORADO, Ark., Oct. 31.—Union county will celebrate its one hundredth anniversary here Saturday, Nov. 2 in a program the oustanding features of which will be the dedication of the new $700,000 courthouse, shown above, and a speech by United States Senator T. H. Caraway. The new courthouse stands within a stone's throw of the site of the first one constructed here in 1843, when El Dorado was laid off in the wilderness after the county seat had been changed from Champagnolle on the Ouachita river about 18 miles east of here. At the time of its formation on Nov. 2, 1829, Union county comprised all of what is now Calhoun, Bradley and Ouachita and parts of Columbia, Nevada, Drew, Ashley and Dallas. Among the honored guests of the celebration Saturday will be Mrs. Fannie Lacey Lester, 82, of near El Dorado, the first child born here.

From a population of a few hundred and a property assessment of less than $50,000 in 1829, Union county has grown to be one of the most populous and wealthy in the state, its property assessment reaching $35,000,000, and its population being estimated at around 75,000. Its greatest growth has been during the past eight years, since the discovery of oil. More than 5,000 producing wells have been drilled, and the total oil runs have amounted to 35,000,000 barrels in this and the counties that were originally included in its boundaries, according to figures given out by Chester Taylor, secretary of the Arkansas department of conservation and inspection.

Watson Pleads for Tariff Act

After Conference With Chief Executive Asks Action

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. (AP) Senator Watson, of Indiana, republican leader, announced today that President Hoover wanted the tariff bill passed as soon as possible and urged that all factions approach the subject in a conciliatory manner and give it full consideration.

Watson, who is preparing to leave for Florida for his health and who has relinquished temporarily his leadership to Jones, of Washington, arose at the opening of the senate session and told of a conference he had at the White House with the President last night.

Mr. Hoover, Senator Watson said, was anxious that the tariff bill be passed as a part of his special session program which called for farm relief through a marketing act and tariff legislation.

Watson's speech started a whirl of replies, lasting practically through the opening hours of the session.

County Man Gets Sentence Suspended

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 31. (AP) Governor Parnell by proclamation today indefinitely suspended the sentence of one year against Otto Foster, convicted on perjury in Hempstead county at the recent term of court.

The action was taken on recommendation of a number of citizens the proclamation said.

Peace Officers To Meet Monday

Semi-Annual Meet of State Association At Pine Bluff.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Oct. 31—(AP)—Arrangements for the program and entertainment of delegates to the semi-annual meeting of the Arkansas Peace Officers Association which begins here Monday, November 4, have been made, according to an announcement of Constable J. L. McBurnett, vice president of the association and chairman of the entertainment committee.

The first day of the two-day convention will be devoted to a business session in the morning, a luncheon at noon, and a sight-seeing tour during the afternoon.

E. W. Freeman of the Pine Bluff Commercial, will be toastmaster at the luncheon, with Charles Evans of Little Rock, toastmaster at a banquet which will precede the dance in the evening. Ed F. McDonald, assistant secretary of state, will be one of the speakers on the banquet program.

A pistol shooting tournament for the officers and their ladies will feature the second day of the convention. In these contests, a number of prizes will be offered.

Mrs. Weinmann Named To Arkansas Post Board

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 31.—Mrs. John F. Weinmann of Little Rock, late president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, was appointed yesterday by Governor Parnell as a member of the Arkansas Post State Park Commission, created by the 1929 legislature to preserve and beautify the park at Arkansas Post, the first settlement in the State.

Mrs. Weinmann was recommended by the U. D. C. and she will represent that organization on the commission. A member to represent the Daughters of the American Revolution will be appointed soon and the commission then will hold its first meeting.

Nova Scotia In Prohi Election

Scotians Vote Today On Wet or Dry Proposition and Election Hot

TRURO, N. S., Oct. 31 (AP) Nova Scotia, one of the two remaining Canadian provinces with a prohibition law, is deciding today whether or not it will remain in the dry column.

Voters must choose between retention of the present dry law and the substitution of government control and sale of intoxicating liquors. Four weeks of intensive campaigning by prohibitionists and those favoring temperance reform gives promise of a heavy vote being polled.

Sunday Blue Law Cases Dismissed

Charges Against Pine Bluff Theatrer Employes Quashed.

PINE BLUFF, Oct. 31.—Eight indictments against Manager A. Brown Parkes and seven charges against three employes, charging them with laboring on the Sabbath in connection with the staging of Sunday motion picture shows here were dismissed in Circuit Court this morning.

The three employes, Miss Elizabeth Stewart, cashier; Dolf Kastor, floor manager, and Eddie Royster, projectionist, were acquitted at a trial in the court several weeks ago when Judge T. G. Parham ruled that the state had not made a case.

Mrs. Pantages In Serious Condition

Theater Magnate Fears Wife Will Die If Incarcerated.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—(AP)—While attorneys for Alexander Pantages, convicted of a criminal attack upon Eunice Pringle, co-ed dancer, prepared to move for a new trial Friday when the multi-millionaire theatre man appears for sentencing in superior court, Mrs. Lois Pantages, his wife, today was under observation of physicians who reported her condition critical.

Pantages yesterday was granted permission to visit his wife's bedside. Upon his return to the county jail in custody of deputy sheriffs he appeared downcast and expressed belief she was "going to die."

Mrs. Pantages, herself convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of a Japanese after an automobile collision has been ill since the accident. Her physician said she was in a "very critical condition."

Questioned by District Attorney Buron Fitts concerning reports of irregularities in the Pantages case jury room, Mrs. Christine Ulrich, jury member, swore to affidavits specifically denying the rumors. Pantages' attorney had declared they would base a plea for a new trial on the asserted jury scandal.

Cement Plant Folks To Have House Warming

One of the first of many social events that will be held in the winter season will be a dance tonight—a house warming introducing the cement town's community center to the people of the surrounding community.

The affair will be held in the supply store building which just completed. Jimmy Pryor's ten-piece orchestra has been secured for the evening, and a gala time is promised all who attend.

Bandit Kisses Girl He Robbed and Jail is Cost

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Because Enrique Majia Galvan stopped to kiss Miss Enriqueta Suarez after taking away her pocketbook at the point of a pistol, he fell into the clutches of the law.

Not content with the 15 pesos in the girl's purse, the bandit demanded a kiss under threat of death. He lingered too long in the act and a policeman happened along.

Legion Drive for Members Is Begun

Committee Is Canvassing Old Members in City Today

Canvassing of the membership of the American Legion for renewal of dues for 1930 was started at noon today, with a committee luncheon at the Checkerboard cafe.

The names of all old members were divided among the committee, and a report is expected on most of them by tonight. When the regular membership is completely renewed the drive will be continued for additional members in Hempstead county and the teritory governed by the local Legion post.

Barney Hamm, post commander, presided at the luncheon, which was attended by the following other legionnaires: Ira Halliburton, Roy Allen, Alex. H. Washburn, Jack Frazier and Carter Johnson.

Hunting Season Open Tomorrow

Bag Limit for Ducks Is 15 and On Geese Is Eight.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Tomorrow will see the opening of the season on ducks and geese which continues for three months until January 31, 1930. The daily bag limit on ducks is 15, and on geese eight.

Hunters are required to obtain a state hunting license, the cost of which to residents in $1.10, and non-residents is $15.

Mythical Wealth Cause of Break

Arkansas Senator Says That 'False Prosperity' Caused Drop

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Responsibility for the stupendous drop in stock market prices was attributed today to President Hoover and other chieftains of the republican party by Senator Robinson, Arkansas, democratic floor leader.

The chief executive, secretary Mellon and former President Coolidge were blamed by the Arkansian, who, a year ago, was his party's choice for the vice presidency, for causing a speculative market with over confidence, and the present administration was criticized for not having taken steps to check the recession when it became known.

In addition, Robinson took exception to a statement made by Dr. Julius Klein in a radio speech Tuesday night in which he stated that American business and industry were in a highly sound and stable condition, asserting it was a matter of common knowledge that a period of depression had gropped small business and industry and agriculture as well.

Norris, Nebraska, Again Seeks Seat

Thorn In Flesh of Regulars Announces Will Seek Re-Election.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. (AP)—George W. Norris, the Nebraska Independent who has been a thorn in the side of his regular republican colleagues for years, is formally in the field for reelection to the senate.

Norris, who supported Alfred E. Smith, the democratic presidential candidate, in a statement published today said he considered that his principles of government had been challenged. He charged an alliance had been formed between the republican "standpat machine" within Nebraska and those who controlled the machine from the outside, and that Samuel R. McKelvie, former governor are now a member of the farm board, had been named to defeat him.

Until recently it had been regarded as certain that Norris would retire with the end of his term. Friends had urged him to announce his candidacy, however, on the ground that the McKelvie farm board nomination was a challenge. Norris refrained from voting on the confirmation of McKelvie.

Futrall Defends School Aid Given By 1929 Session

With All Its Shortcomings, Last Legislature Was Best.

REPLY TO CRITICS

Educator Reviews Changing Methods of Taxation; In Arkansas

FAYETTEVILLE, Oct. 31.—John C. Futrall, president of the University of Arkansas, declared tonight in a speech from the university's broadcasting station that "the legislature of 1929 probably did more for the public school system than any of its predecessors. Mr. Futrall's speech was as follows:

The survey of the public school system in Arkansas made in 1922 by the U. S. Bureau of Education, at the direction of the Governor of the state, pointed out two important things; first, that not enough money was being devoted to public education in Arkansas to maintain a satisfactory system of public education; and, second, that the state was not paying for public education in proportion to its ability to pay. In spite of improvements, the same condition still exists.

Since 1922 the state institutions of higher education have had nothing done for them in the way of increased appropriations. In 1922 the legislature made provision for two new buildings at the state university, but it did so by merely taking money from the University's maintenance fund. Considered from the standpoint of population, wealth, income, and ability to support institutions of higher education, Arkansas is still at the bottom of the list of states. The public schools have fared somewhat better in the way of increased support than have the institutions of higher education, but financial support for public schools in Arkansas is still far from what it should be. Here again the state is at or near the bottom of the list.

A Revenue Issue

The main cause of this condition is and has been the antiquated system of raising revenue to which the state still clings. The doctrine laid down by Adam Smith 150 years ago that people should be taxed for governmental and public purposes in accordance with their ability to pay is still accepted as sound the world over. Many years ago the possession of property was perhaps the best evidence of a man's ability to pay taxes. Consequently there grew up the system of raising almost all the money needed for governmental purposes by a tax on property. At the present time, however, possession of property is a very poor criterion of the owner's ability to pay taxes. Frequently the owner of a piece of property in which a great deal of money is tied up will derive no income from that property for a year or a period of years. Under our system he continues to pay taxes on that property, however, just as if he derived a good income from it each year. The owner must therefore pay his taxes from income derieved from other sources, or he must sell a part of his property. Whenever a man can not pay taxes on his property and is forced to sell it, not only his present but his future tax paying power is destroyed.

Former Governor Lowden of Illinois, who gained a national reputation by the introduction of efficiency into the Illinois state government, recently delivered a noteworthy address before the annual meeting of the National Tax Association of the United States. In this address he pointed out that every important nation of the world except America long ago discarded the property tax as the chief source of revenue for governmental purposes; while in this country property pays 75 per cent of the taxes, but produces only 20 per cent of the income. Certainly such a condition is utterly repugnant to the doctrine of taxation in accordance with the ability of the taxpayer to pay.

Bad Assessment System

In Arkansas the fact that the great burden of taxation is laid on property rather than on profits and income, is complicated by the additional fact that the system of assessment in the state is most inefficient and inequitable. The same class of property in one section may be and often is assessed very differently from the same kind of property in another section. For example, an investigation made two or three years ago showed that in one county mules were assessed at $16.00 a head, while the same kind of mules in another county were assessed at $76.00 a head, almost five times as much. In general, farm lands are assessed at a smaller percentage of their market value than is real estate in the towns and cities. While this is not in accord with the constitution of Arkansas, there is nevertheless essential justice in the fact for the reason that, in general, the farmers of Arkansas pay out in taxes a much larger percentage of their income than do the owners of property in towns and cities. The placing of such a burden on the farmers again contravenes the fundamental principles of taxation.

Some have advocated the abolition of the tax on property for state pur-

The Avenging Parrot

© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

By Anne Austin, author of "The Black Pigeon," "Rival Wives," etc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Through the influence of his uncle, Police Commissioner O'Brien, Bonnie Dundee, student of criminology, egts a job as "cub" detective under Lieutenant John Strawn of the homicide squad of Hamilton and takes a room incognito at Mrs. Rhodes' boarding house to be near a Mrs. Emma Hogarth, who has written the police for protection, declaring her life and money are in danger, and throwing suspicion on Emil Eevier, former border.

On the third floor with Dundee are Daisy Shepherd, sales woman; Jewel Briggs, stenographer, and Tilda housemaid. At dinner he meets Mr. and Mrs. Sharp, Cora Barker, pianist at a local theatre; Walter Styles, proprietor of a small haberdashery; Norma Paige, his fiancee; Bert Mangnus, an amateur scenario writer, and Henry Dowd, a newcomer out of work.

Dundee reflects that this is a harmless group when the cry of "Murder!" rings out. Dusty, Mrs. Rhodes' worthless husband, assures them the cry came from Cap'n, Mrs. Hogarth's parrot. Dundee then hears of the woman's miserliness, how she is roombound on account of illness, and of her constant change of her will to name a new favorite.

Norma, her latest heiress, who fears she will lose out because of her engagement to Styles, agrees to introduce Dundee that night. When Magnus says he would like to meet her too, Cora, who is in love with him, pleads with him to defer his visit. Bonnie is able to get only a few private words with Mrs. Hogarth on account of her many callers. When he leaves, Norma and Styles go to her door. Dundee tells Magnus Mrs. Hogarth wants to see him. Returning from police headquarters at 12:20, he finds Mrs. Hogarth's door unlocked, and that she has been chocked to death by a black scarf used to cover the cage of Cap'n, her parrot. Coroner and finger-print expert arive and the investigation begins.

NOW GO ON WIT HTHE STORY

CHAPTER VI

"Of course the first thing you're interested in is how long she's been dead," Dr. Price, the coroner, said to Lieutenant Strawn. "It's pretty obvious she was strangled. No wound, I suppose?" and he bent over the body of Mrs. Hogarth.

"No sign of one." Lieutenant Strawn answered. 'I'd like you to meet Mr. Dundee, Doctor. He's a new member of the homicide squad. Joined the force today and came here to board."

"Lucky to have him on the scene of the crime. Don't suppose you did it, young feller, to make a good case on which to win promotion?" the coroner chuckled.

Bonnie Dundee flushed. "I feel almost as responsible as if I had killed her, Doctor. As a matter of fact, I came here to live to protect her from—just this," and he made a despairing gesture toward the corpse. "I talked with her this evening. Left her alive and as well as usual at about 10:45. When I returned for a private conference at about 12:20—we'd been interrupted by visitors all evening—I found her dead. So of my own knowledge, death took place between 10:45 and 12:10. I saw 12:10 instead of 12:20, for it is obvious that the murderer ransacked the room after he killed her, and it must have taken him at least 10 minutes to get the place so completely upset."

"Hmm. You ought to make a good detectitve, my lad," the doctor remarked, his eyes twinkling. He was a lean oldish man, about 55 or 60, with white hair.

"Heart trouble, high blood pressure deficiency," he diagnosed aloud. "Now, let's see— "

Dundee turned his back while the coroner made further examination of the body. He was thinking of how much alive the poor woman had been two hours ago, and he raged against himself for having let this thing happen to her. She had been so zestful of life, though she had almost lost the use of her great body. What if she had been erratic a miser, "mischeivous," as Daisy Shepherd had expresed it? What if she had created enemies by changing her will so often, had aroused the passion of greed in her fellow- boarders by keeping her money in her room? She had meant to reward kindness.

And that thought brought Bonnie Dundee crashing against a realization he had been keeping at bay since he had said so gibly, "Of my own knowledge death took place between 10:45 and 12:10." The person who would benefit most by Mrs. Hogarth's death, provided she had not been robbed, was Norma Paige. And Norma Paige and Walter Styles had been running to call upon Mrs. Hogarth at 10 minutes of 11.

Unconsciously, Dundee had been watching the swift efficient work of the finger print expert, directed by Lieutenant Strawn. Now Dr. Price's voice cut into his thoughts and fears.

"Well, Strawn, as near as I can tell you now, she's been dead about an hour. Let's see—" and heconsulted his watch— "it's now 12:50. I figure that death took place between 11:45 and 12. Of course, it might have been a bit earlier—say 11:30—but I think not, judging from the—"

Dundee spun on his heel and clapped his hands to his ears. He was endure a recital of the pathological still too new at this sort of thing to findings of the cheerfully interested doctor. If he had not known Mrs. Hogarth, had not seen her laughing and joking and showing off her parrot—

"All right, Dr. Price," said Strawn, "and thank you. You can take her away now. By the way, was her death a quick one, or is there any possibility that she lived awhile seeing her murderer at work robbing her?"

"I'm fairly sure she died almost instantly," Dr. Price answered. "If I'm not badly mistaken I'll find she had fatty degeneration of the heart."

"She told [illegible] ed.

[illegible]

[illegible]

"—round key is for the desk, I suppose; the fat one for the trunk, and this little gold one for—what?"

"The diary, I imagine. It has a lock clasp on it," Dundee answered.

"Well, if she kept it locked, it is not locked now," Strawn discovered, lifting the top cover of the green-leather-bound book. "Have you finished with this book, Caraway?"

The fingerprint expert came forward them. "That? Oh, it's no use bothering with it! That pebbly leather wouldn't give up a recognizable print. Of course the inside pages would—"

"May I?" Dundee asked, and opened the book, turning the green-ink written pages swiftly, by the very tip-end of them, to the page with the printed date, "Saturday, June 29." He uttered an exclamation: "Look! She was writing in it this evening, after all! Here is the entry—" But he stopped, the words dying away in his throat as his eyes took in the words which formed the last paragraph of the day's entry.

"Let me see!" Strawn comanded, bending over the book.

"As hot today as my future home will be; that is, if I go where some of my good friends expect me to," Mrs. Hogarth had written, with grim humor. "The moths and lights midgets are a nuisance. If that useless Dusty doesn't put my screen in Monday, I'm going to shake his teeth down his throat. Something very strange about his putting off that job, lazy as he is. I more than half believe E. S. or C. B. has bribed him to leave my Window unscreened. It's been five years since I've had such a strong presentiment of disaster as I've had today. Wrote the police commissioner to send a plainclothes detective. I suppose he will laugh at me antd let me die like a—" ended here, and undoubtedly had been written before the visit of Norma Paige and Bonnie Dundee. But it was the second page, marked "Later" which had made Dundee's heart lunge sickeningly.

"More trouble!" Mrs. Hogarth had written, waveringly, as if her hand had been trembling with rage or weariness. "Norma has defied me and got herself engaged to that fortune-hunter, Walter Styles. Told her I was going to change my will tomorrow. But oh, I don't know! I'm sick of meddling with other people's lives. I've got a lot of fun and excitement out of it, but now I wish I had never started the whole foolish business. The police aren't such fools as I thought them. They sent—"

The entry stopped abruptly on the incomplete sentence. Had she been interrupted by a knock on her door, or had her murderer entered noiselessly from the porch, by the low, unscreened window, and cut short the old woman's last commnnication to her diary and her life at the same time?

"But why should he close the book?" Dundee puzzled aloud. "And here is her fountain pen, on the desk not on the floor, where it would probably have dropped if she had been startled by an attack."

"Fine points, son," Strawn grinned. "But what I'm interested in is having a chat with Mr. Emil Sevier and with Mr. 'Dusty' Rhodes. Step outside and tell Wilkins I want him."

Dunde obeyed, finding the detective and Mrs. Rhodes talking together in low voices at the head of the stairs. A uniformed policeman was patrolling the hall, to see that no boarder made a bolt for the stairs. All doors were closed, but Dundee could imagine what excitement and terror lurked in each of those rooms.

"Wilkins," Strawn began, I want you to get a list of all of 'Dusty' Rrodes' usual haunts from his wife, and send a couple of men out to try to round him up. Quick!"

"And Sevier?" Dundee dared question his chief.

"Oh, I/set the machinery in motion to drag him in before I left headquarters," Strawn answered. "As Mrs. Hogarth admitted, the police are not such fools as some people think. The boys ought to be on his trail by this time . . . And now, Dundee, I want you to hide yourself behind that screen—" and he pointed to a green burlap screen of three sections that concealed the stationary wash basin—"and listen to the boarders' stories. Might as well make notes, too. Who has the room next door?" and he pointed toward the west side of the house. Henry Dowd! All right. We'll have him in first."

"Dundee, I want you to hide yourself behind that screen and listen in on the boarders' stories."

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

SOCIETY

Mrs. Sid Henry Telephone 321

They soon grow old and grope for gold
In marts where all is bought and sold;
Who live for self, and on some shelf
In darkened vaults hoard up their pelf.
Cankered and crusted o'er with mold,
For them their youth itself is old.
They ne'er grow old who gather gold
Wher spring awakes and flowers unfold;
Where sing arise in joyous skies,
And fill the soul within their eyes.
For them the immortal bards have sung,
For them old age itself is young.

Grading Junction At Main and 16th

State Highway Crews Connect Lewisville Road With Pavement

Grading and graveling of the junction of the South Main paving with the Lewisville highway, at Sixteenth street, is under way, State Engineer R. B. Stanford announced today.

When completed, which will probable be this week, it will make a continuous stretch of all-weather road from Hope to Junction City, Ark.-La., and is now being used as far as Lewisville as the detour route between Hope and Texarkana. The route has been open for some time, but the construction of city paving on a lower level required a new grade on the state highway for a dozen yards or so, in order to make a smooth, level connection.

State Engineer Buys Home Here

R. B. Stanford Purchases Residence From Kennedy Estate

R. B. Stanford, district engineer for the State Highway Department, has permanently located in Hope with his purchase of a substantial home here, it was learned recently.

Mr. Stanford bought the residence owned by the estate of Dr. W. S. Kennedy, at Tenth street and Elm. It is a nine-room house and makes a commodious home for Mr. and Mrs. Stanford and their two sons, who, while absent from the city much of the time, still call this their home town.

Interviewed about his purchase, this morning, Mr. Stanford laughed and said that it was merely "another highway department employee who has also gone to work for a building and loan company."

The Code of Newspapers

A JUSTICE of the District of Columbia Supreme Court sent to jail yesterday three reporters of the Washington Times who refused to tell a grand jury where they bought whisky while gathering evidence for a series of newspaper articles exposing enforcement conditions in the national capital.

The reporters told the judge they were gathering evidence for their newspapers. They had obtained admission to "speakeasies" by pledging their word not to reveal the names and addresses of the liquor operators. They pleaded, therefore, that journalistic ethics prohibited them from testifying before the grand jury.

The judge told the reporters he didn't recognize "journalistic ethics," and held them to be in contempt of court for refusing to answer the grand jury's questions.

The reporters were right. The judge was wrong. He was wrong, in the fashion that jurisprudence usually is wrong, when following the literal interpretation of the law in defiance of concrete facts.

According to the law, newspaper reporters, being citizens like the rest, are subject to summons by a grand jury, and when called before that body must answer its questions.

But, according to the facts, newspaper reporters hold a semi-public position which frequently carries them on a confidential mission for their paper. If the paper stands for the public interest—and it generally does—then it is obvious that the strict application of the law against the reporters is merely a back-handed attempt to suppress a newspaper expose.

The history of American newspapers proves that almost every great political scandal is first revealed through investigations conducted by the press. If newspaper ethics are not to be recognized by the courts, then certainly the newspapers are warranted in throwing a bouquet to the lawyers—for it is notorious that no criminal is such a blackguard that he lacks an advocate.

To quote a concrete case involving the same principle brought out at Washington yesterday, Stanley Andrews and this writer were editing the El Dorado Daily News in 1923-24 when by actual count of newspaper reporters there were fifty-five open saloons in Union county. The sheriff would not make arrests. The district attorney's office said it could do nothing, because the duty of that office was to try offenders—not to get evidence on them. Meanwhile, the saloons were running, and men refused to bring their families to a city surrounded by a county of that character.

The El Dorado Daily News broke the barrel-houses of Union county with on fell stroke, simply sending reporters to the various houses and describing conditions as they found them. They did not call names. They did not give addresses. But they drew for the voters of Union county a truthful picture of the state of law enforcement in that section of Arkansas.

Subsequently, the district attorney's office inquired whether the reporters would be willing to appear before the grand jury. They would not. Their evidence was the property of the newspaper—the state had to get its own evidence.

The fact that the state did get the evidence, and that the barrel-houses went out of Union county on December 31, 1924, was the result of a successful newspaper crusade.

From this distance we should judge that the editors of the Washington Times had an equally good motive when they set the reporters onto Washington's underworld.

They are right. The judge is wrong. The judiciary discloses the law to the people, but the newspaper discloses the facts; and no judge has the right, moral or legal, to make undercover men out of reporters while pursuing a given line of duty.

Brainless Flyers

ANNOUNCEMENT that officials of a middle-western university town had to take special precautions to made sure that reckless aviators would not try any aerial stunts over a packed stadium during a recent football game indicates that we are going to have idiotic flyers to cope with, just as we have had idotic automobile drivers

No flyers in his senses would stunt over a stadium jammed with people; and, up to this time, most of us have taken it for granted that all aviators had good sense. But apparently some of them have not. It is rather disquieting to think about, too. A lunatic in an airplane could cause an awful lot of damage.

A Step in the Right Direction!

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—The golden age for the lobbyists of Washington came in the sixties and seventies. The northern industrialists had destroyed the power of the southern planters at the seat of government and there was little they didn't want—and get.

"Never have public men in responsible positions, directing the destiny of the nation, been so brutal, hypocritical and corrupt."

So says Claude G. Bowers of the 12 years following the death of Lincoln in the introduction to "The Tragic Era," recently published.

The lobbyists of the time, of course, both helped create and took advantage of this situation.

The King of the Lobby

In that period rose Sam Ward, who rejoiced in the title "King of the Lobby." His Majesty came from a distinguished family and was a brother of Julia Ward Howe. He is described as a "compactly built, round-headed gentleman" who had studied abroad, dug gold, written verse and served as a diplomat in Nicaragua. Being a man of imposing manner, wit and culture, he tried to elevate the lobbying business to a profession.

During the day, "Uncle Sam" made his headquarters in the Appropriations Committee rooms at the Capitol and at night he entertained royally in a little house on E street. His sister says in her reminiscences:

"He had an unusual power of reconciling people who were at variance with each other, and the dinners at which he presided furnished occasions to bring face to face political opponents accustomed to avoid each other, but unable to resist the bonhomie which sought to make them better friends. He became known as the king of the lobby, but much more as the prince of entertainers. Although careful in his diet, he was well versed in gastronomics, and his menues were wholly original and excellent. He had friendly relations with the diplomats who were prominent in the society of the capital. Lord Roeberry and the Duke of Devonshire were among his friends, as were also the late Senator Bayard and President Garfield."

It was Ward who presented to the speaker of the House a silver cup inscribed from "Rex Vestiaris"—king of the lobby.

The lobbyists apparently did not march to the battle front in the Civil war, nor let up in their efforts here, for a writer of the time describes a large colection of "ex-members of either House or Senate, profesional borers, broken down politicians and other vagrants who negotiated for votes of members on terms to be agreed on by the contracting parties."

These men presumably had much to do with the astonishing frauds which were put over in the Lincoln administration. The government paid enormous sums for worthless munitions, ancient disintegrating hulks bought as army and navy transports, food for the army so bad that it caused epidemics and many deaths, and all kinds of shoddy material.

After the war the G. A. R. maintained a political organization which was strongly represented at the capital, lobbying for the desire of its members.

All accounts agree that the lobbyists swarmed here during the Andrew Johnson administration and that there were many signs of bribery. Railroad men and other capitalists were still grabbing the public lands. One reads of the "Northern Pacific plunderers in the galleries, looking down at the scene like beasts of prey."

Music Critic (to sweet young thing): "How did you like the barcarolle at the musicale last night?"

Sweet Young Thing: "I didn't stay for the refreshments, Mr. Cleff."—Arkansas Banker.

Here's Why Firestone Truck Tires Last Longer

Here's Why Firestone Tires Hold All Records

THE PICK of the long staple cotton crop is bought by Firestone experts in the primary cotton markets. It is shipped to Firestone's own cord fabric mills—the largest in the world—where it is first twisted into tiny threads. These threads are then tightly twisted into ply yarns, and three of these are twisted in the reverse direction into cords of fish-line strength. Exactly the right number of twists are carefully determined to secure the greatest strength and elasticity.

¶Not satisfied with cords of superior strength and elasticity, each individual cord is Gum-Dipped—a patented Firestone process in which every cord is submerged in a vat of pure liquid rubber gum—where every single fiber of every cord is saturated and completely covered with rubber. That's why Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires give most miles per dollar and hold all world records for speed, safety and economy. Your size is in our stock—come in. We save you money and serve you better.

The Game's Over—Well, Who Wins?

They say the football rules jugglers are going to get together at the end of the season and simplify the touchdown business. That shouldn't be such a Gargantuan endeavor if somebody can find one of the 190 rule books. By going back 20 years and forgiving and forgetting all that has occurred in the way of rule changes since then, some great and lasting good may be accomplished.

At least, for the customers. It's getting so that the fans at an ordinary football game actually have to go ask some official after the game who won. A case in point:

Brown beat Princeton the other day, but of all the thousands who saw the game, no one would reach right down in his pocket and bet a dollar on the contest until they had read the newspapers.

False Cheers

We have the picture of Princeton beating Brown by a score of 12 to 7 with three minutes to play. It is fourth down. The quarterback—it is Brown's ball—calls for a forward pass. He shoots it through the air straight into the arms of a waiting end. The end race across the goal line and touches earth with the oval.

In the old days nearly everybody—even the lady two seats to the rear who asks why the players don't run the other way because the path is clear—would have known that was a touchdown. There would have been wild cheering over the catching of victory after the game seemed lost. But no!

The stands sat hushed. Even after th players had raced across the line, the stands were silent. They sat like the Roman Senate might have sat, waiting for Cicero to launch his exordium.

Suddenly the referee's arms shot up. It was the signal—touchdown! And the stands—after a full minute of suspence—broke into a mad roar of victory.

You Don't Fool Us

It was like this, you see. The stands had seen two Princeton men run for touchdowns in the period preceding that last swift dash across the goal. They had cheered them, only to find out after all the shouting that these weren't touchdowns at all. There had been some technicality, friends. The stamping, cheering and whistling had been wated. They would be fooled no more. They would wait and see.

There you are. If the crowd doesn't know enough about the game to realize that a winning score has been made, what has football become?

Chasing the Captains

The tendency of coaches to chase captains to the bench has shown a marked increase this year. It is remarkable, too, that captains have been dethroned mostly after the teams lose games. If the coaches are the real leaders and direct the play of the team, why pick on the poor skipper? It's all very complicated.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Austin Smith, North Dakota tackle, wear a full mustache and beard. . . . Inquiries revealed, however, he was not one of the well-known cough drop brothers. . . . The Cubs liked Mule Haas, and so long as somebody had to break up a ball game for them, they'd just as soon see him do it. . . . Press box applications for the Michigan-Illinois game contain a warning against requesting a seat for an "assitant" . . . because "our confidence has been blighted by the appearance of pugilists, brood salesmen and billposters as 'assistants'." . . . In 27 years of competition, Joe Ruddy, the swimmer, has scored 1650 points for the New York A. C. . . . Joe is 51 . . . His garndfather was Joe Hornpipe McGrath, heavyweight champion of Ireland, who died at the age of 108. . . . Joe says he'll still be "in the swim" at 125.

Battling Parson Fights 'Bad Babies'

Weaves Into Limelight As Tries To Suppress Show.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—Johyna Ralston, screen and stage actress, wore the same costume in "Bad Babies," an allegedly indecent show, that she did on the beach, she testified Wednesday at her trial with seven other members of the cast.

Action against the play had been brought about by the Rev. R. P. Shuler, Los Angeles' guarding minister. "They were lounging pajamas, weren't they?" The defense asked, referring to a complaint by Rev. Schuler over what Miss Ralston wore.

"I don't know anything about lounging pajamas. I call them night clothes," the minister said.

The members of the cast giggled while Rev. Shuler demonstrated with Defense Attorney W. J. Clark how love scenes in the stage production looked to him.

"I'll do my best, but I won't kiss you," Shuler said.

"Bad Babies" is a story of the loves and criminal adventures of a crowd of high school boys and girls. Miss Ralston was the star.

Dean Wins From Matlock Tuesday

Reported Here That Old Warrior Quit In Seventh.

As stated in these columns last week, Jack Matlock and Herschel Dean mixed it in the ring at Cotton Valley last Tuesday night. As was not stated in these columns, Dean was returned winner, Matlock's seconds tossing the towel in the ring at the call of time for the eighth.

Mr. Dean, father of Herschel, was up yesterday and gave an account of the fight. He reports that Herschel had no trouble in hitting Matlock at will and, while he couldn't even knock him off his feet gave him a terrific drubbing.

Matlock is now seeking a return engagement with Dean on a winner-take-all basis, and Leavelle, local promoter, is trying to get them hooked up for a go here.

And that's that.

Chief Hocutte, who goes on in the main event here tomorrow night, came in Wednesday evening, fit as a fiddle and rearin' to go. He and Debs Dean, about of a size and the same reach, both willing mixers, ought to be good for a real scrap.

Then while you are thinking of fighting, just remember that Poindexter, the black king of ring comedy, meets his hated rival, Willie Glenn.

Justice Is Not Blind!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Justice is no longer dispensed by ignorant and individual domination. Another ancient prejudice stands convicted by AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE which insists that a jury "twelve good men, tried and true" decide the facts.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

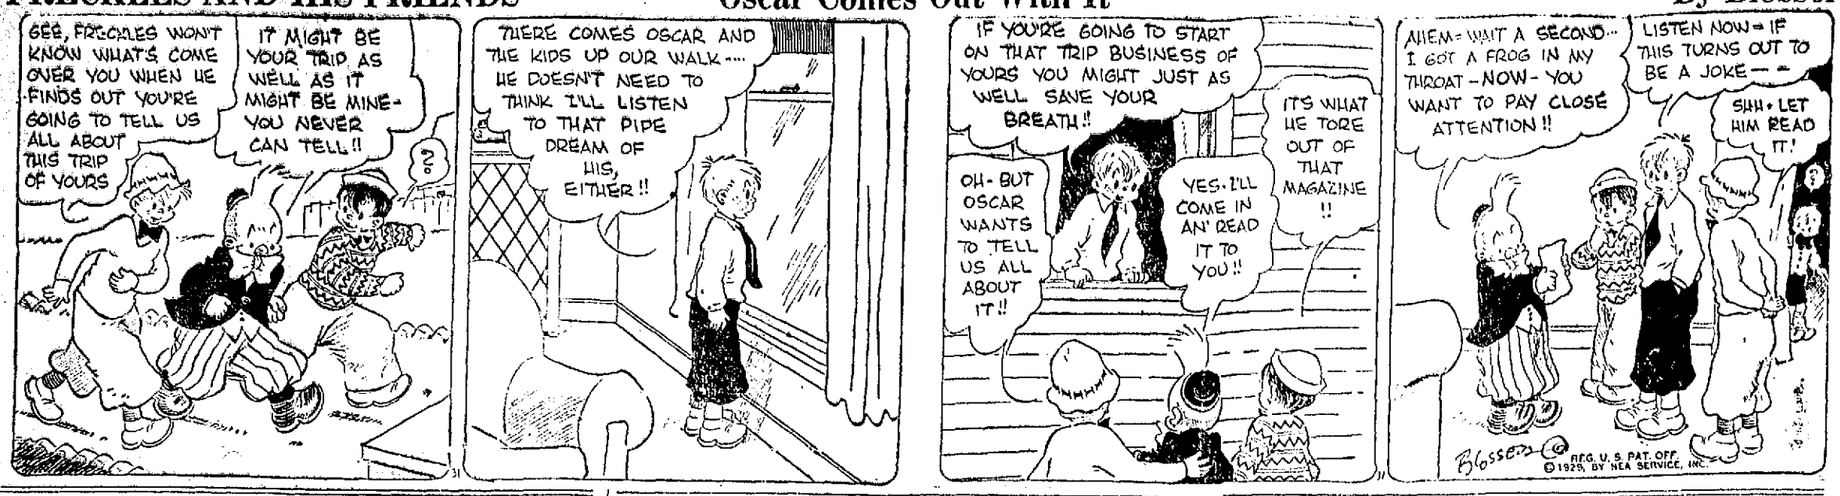

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

poses, thus leaving the property tax to counties for their local revenues. The fact is, however, that there exist within a given county just as great inequalities in assessment of property for taxation as can be found between counties. If the state should withdraw entirely from the field of taxing property for state purposes, the matter of property assessments would then be entirely in the hands of the county and there would be little hope that the present inequalities and inequities in assessments might be wiped out. A number of states in the Union have shown that it is possible for the state government to pass and enforce laws for the assessment of property that will bring out about a far more equitable condition than now exists in Arkansas. To obtain the best results in this state some changes in the constitution would be necessary but great improvement could be made by proper legislative acts.

Right now in Arkansas it is a favorite indoor sport to abuse the legislature for alleged extravagances. In fact, this is a favorite pastime in most of the states most of the time, both in regard to their legislatures and to the national Congress. Particular emphasis is being laid on the increase of governmental costs in Arkansas in recent years.

Explaining Figures

The mere fact that costs have increased has no significance. To say, for example, that the Arkansas legislature of 1929 spent $15,000.00 for mimeographing bills that were introduced into that body, while a dozen years ago it spent only $1,000.00 for that purpose, means nothing. To say that public education in Arkansas now costs two or three times what it cost a dozen years ago means nothing. The increased cost of education is due to the fact that there are now many more children in school, that the average length of the school term in much longer, that the teachers are better qualified, that the buildings and the equipment are much better, that high school facilities have been greatly increased and many other improvements made.

The reason for the increased cost of mimeographing or printing bills by the legislature is that all bills are now printed or mimeographed, whereas a dozen years ago very few of them were. Many bills offered in the legislature are long and complicated. Before it became customary to print or mimeograph these bills, not only did the members of the legislature have trouble in finding out what was in them, but citizens of the state, whose interests were vitally affected by them, found it difficult and expensive to get copies. Under the present system every member of the legislature has the opportunity to know what is in every bill, and citizens of the state can easily get copies of them. The saving for the people of the state, made possible by the mimeographing of even one bill, might easily be much more than $15,000.00. Some states have laws requiring that all bills introduced into the legislature shall be printed or mimeographed before being passed. There should be such a law in every state.

Arkansas' Cost Low

Figures published by the United States Department of Commerce show that in 1927 the average cost of state government per capita in all the states of the Union was $10.30, while in Arkansas it was $6.98, or almost one-third below the average for the country at large. If the low cost of state government is to be taken as an evidence of its wisdom and efficiency then the people of Arkansas at least have the satisfaction of knowing that they have a more economical and efficient state government than all of the states in the Union except four. The same bulletin of the United States Department of Commerce shows that, in the ten-year period between 1917 and 1927, the average per capita increase in the cost of state government in the United States was $5.88, while in Arkansas the increase was only $4.51. If increase in governmental costs is necessarily a vicious thing, then citizens of Arkansas may feel relieved to know that they are less vicious than 39 of the 48 states of the Union.

There is now existent in this country a doctrine of reducing or holding down governmental expenditures, regardless of the manner in which the reductions are made. The proponents of this doctrine are willing to do without good schools, without an efficient public health service, without hospitals, without highways, if the lack of those things will save money.

Great leaders of the medical profession have pointed out that if a state does not have an efficient public health service, it nevertheless pays for such a service many times over by losses incurred through the ravages of preventable diseases. In the same way a state that does not maintain an adequate system of education, nevertheless pays for the cost of such a system through the reduced earning capacity of its citizens and lowered standards of citizenship. A dollar saved is not a dollar earned if the saving is made at a cost of two dollars or five dollars.

Reckless and extravagant statements are often made concerning vast amounts that might be saved in the administration of the state government in Arkansas by the application of economy. No person who is qualified to judge has ever made a critical examination of the machinery of the Arkansas state government to determine how much money is being inadvisedly spent; or, on the other hand, how much money ought to be spent for certain purposes that is not now being spent. Students of government, however, who are in close touch with governmental conditions in Arkansas, assert without hesitation that the great possibility of making savings in governmental costs in this state lies not in the realm of state government, but in the realm of county and local government.

County Rule Improved

The last legislature provided for an audit of the books and records of a large number of counties. Most of these audits that have been completed have shown errors, shortages, and a very haphazard and inefficient system of record and account keeping, needs modernizing by the application County government in Arkansas of modern business methods. If this were done, the efficiency of county government could be tremendously increased at no additional cost; and perhaps a reasonably efficient county government could be had at a much lower cost.

Increased governmental costs since 1917 have been due not only to increased prices for almost everything, but to the additional fact that all of the states have, in that period, been putting more money into such things as schools, roads, and charitable institutions, and have in addition been undertaking enterprises theretofore not carried on at all or carried on imperfectly by private individuals.

Among other things the Arkansas legislature of 1929 made appropriations of considerable size, in some cases amounting to many millions of dollars, for the following items for which the legislature of 1915 made no appropriations at all, either because at that time they were not governmental enterprises, or because other conditions made such appropriations unnecessary:

Construction and maintenance of highways and bridges, interest and principal of bonds of highway improvement districts, firemen's pensions, buildings for State Hospital for Nervous Deseases and Tuberculosis Sanitarium, Tuberculosis Hospital for Negroes, salaries of county superintendents of schools, revolving loan fund for public schools, equalizing fund for rural school, State Geological Survey, vocational education in public schools, State Farm for Women, Veterans Bureau, and various others.

Again, the increased scope of the work in certain lines made necessary increased appropriations, as for example, for county agents in agriculture and home economics, for the public school fund, for higher education, and for the National Guard.

The Arkansas legislature of 1929 was no doubt guilty of sins both of commission and omission, as every legislature in every state always is. It was unfortunate that this legislature could find no means to give additional funds to the six state supported institutions of higher education which have been in existence for many years; and this in spite of the fact that their attendance of college students has almost trebled since they received their last increase in appropriations.

The legislature of 1929, on the other hand, probably did more for the public school system than any of its predecessors. It put real money into the equalization fund for rural schools and into the revolving loan fund for building school houses. It passed laws making more efficient the collection of tax money that goes into the public school fund. And finally, in the face of great opposition, it passed an optional county unit law for the administration of the public schools. When this method of administration is in general use over the state, the schools will be much improved even if the amount of money put into them is not increased.

Does your wife economize?"

American Women Greatest Patrons of Labor-Saving Devices

"The eyes of all Europe are on America these days," said a student of home economics who recently returned from a trip abroad. "Europeans feel that America's progress and higher standard of living are due to forces not operating in their countries. One force is our increased national use of labor-saving devices.

"In laundering, for example, thousands of American women today use a pure, refined paraffin wax. When shaved into the wash boiler, the paraffin releases the dirt in clothes quickly and does away with the necessity of hard rubbing. Mixed with hot starch, it gives smoothness and lustre to linens and makes ironing easier."

"Standard" Parowax—a pure, petroleum wax, made by the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana—is sold by all dealers. 1-lb. carton—15c.—Adv.

Pledges Better Than Old Collection System, Finds

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The Herald and Examiner said today in a copyrighted story that Julius Rosenwald, philanthropist and chairman of the board of Sears-Roebuck & Company had "pledged without limit" his personal fortune to guarantee the stock market accounts of the 40,000 employes of his company.

Mr. Rosenwald decided to take this action, the paper said, following the market drop last Thursday. That same evening he conferred with his son, Lessing, who is vice president of the company; General Robert E. Wood, president; W. O. Lewis, treasurer, and John Higgins, another vice president. To Higgins was delegated the duty of seeing that the employes' accounts were protected.

Higgins immediately looked up the accounts of all employes, not only in Chicago but everywhere the company has branches. When he found an employe carrying an account on which, in the present bear market, his margin had grown too narrow for safety, Higgins communicated with the broker handling the account.

The broker then was asked whether additional collateral was needed to safeguard the account, the Herald and Examiner said.

"We simply put up the collateral so that our employes shall be able to weather the storm," Higgins explained.

"One of the first things I found out was that a great many employes will have no need for the assistance offered. Some of them, thanks to their thrift and good judgment, are wealthy. The help Mr. Rosenwald is offering is for those who need it."

Through Higgins it was learned for the first time that Mr. Rosenwald adopted a similar plan during the period of financial depression in 1921.

"At that time what we did in Mr. Rosenwald's name was to gather up all the employe stock accounts that needed support and placed them in the hands of two big brokerage concerns, depositing collateral as required. The sum Mr. Rosenwald then pledged was about $1,600,000."

Also in 1921, it was recalled, Mr. Rosenwald made a gift of $5,000,000 worth of his own stock to the company and pledged $20,000,000 more of his personal fortune to see the company through.

The present action, it was explained applies to all employes stock accounts, no matter what stocks the employes hold.

Age Responsible for Most Auto Accidents

The commonly accepted phrase of "Flaming Youth" being responsible for the majority of accidents is absolutely disproved by actual statistical records.

An analysis of 18,000 automobile accidents in which 382 people were killed and 4,596 injured in one state alone emphises the urgent need of more care being exercised by pedestrians as well as motorists.

Only 706 of these accidents were caused by operators under 18 whereas 16,858 cases involved drivers between the ages of 25 and 54. Accidents involving drivers of 55 years or over outnumbered those of "Flaming Youth" of 18 years by two to one.

Carelessness was the greatest factor evidently as 3,936 accidents occurred while cars were travelling straight ahead and of these 9000 happened on straight, level, hazardless sections of state highways. 6,501 were due to "errors in judgment" and 1,755 were caused by driving off the roads.

On the pedestrians side 754 accidents were caused by stepping out from between parked cars and 695 through jay-walking.

Only through cautiousness and careful watching on the part of both the motorist and pedestrian can the nation ever hope to overcome such startling figures as our auto deaths total every year.

Dominican President Is On Way To United States

SANTO DOMINGO, Oct. 31.—(AP)—President Vesquewz, who has been in ill health for some time, left here this morning by airplane for the United States. En route he will stop at Santiago and Havana and is not expected to reach Tampa, Fla., until late in the afternoon.

Now To Investigate Stock Market Gambling

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A resolution was introduced in the senate today by Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate speculative operations on all stock exchanges.

Hawthorne Heater

GAS FIRED—CIRCULATION HEATER FOR THREE OR FOUR ROOMS

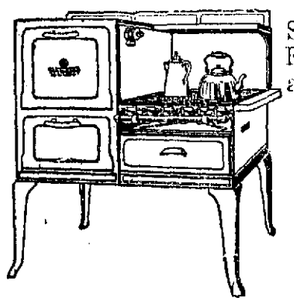

Most stores would probably ask $90.00 for heaters of equal quality and style size

$59.85

The last word in Circulating Heaters. Burns gas. Ultra modern in convenience. Fashionable and beautiful in design. You simply turn on the gas and light the burner, just as you would a gas range. Simple, safe and clean, with healthful comfort in every room. Comfort for yourself and family without effort and without care. Heating unit, all cast iron heating chambers, each having eight vertical fins. Within the heating unit, a special gas burner of exceptional efficiency, sends heat from the gas flame into direct contact with rib-bed cast iron surfaces. The hot gas strikes these surfaces three times on the way to the flu. Heat is picked up rapidly, and high velocities are attained, thus a maximum amount of air is heated in the most efficient manner. No burned gases ever come in contact with the circulating air. Nothing but pure, healthful heat ever reaches the rooms.
